About the Faculty Coordinators

Susan Boyle is the leader of GEI Consultants' brownfield and sustainability practice. Sue's consulting career follows a distinguished public service career at NJDEP in site remediation, sustainable communities, and hazardous waste facility siting. She is on the boards of the Licensed Site Remediation Professionals Association, NJ Society of Women Environmental Professionals, the Urban Land Institute and the Environmental Business Council's committee on sustainability.

Martha N. Donovan Esq. is a member of Norris, McLaughlin and Marcus and devotes her practice to environmental law, including complex multi-party litigation. Martha regularly counsels clients on a variety of environmental issues. Martha has authored numerous articles in the environmental field and has made presentations to various trade groups and associations.

Colleen Kokas is the Brownfield Manager within the Office of Brownfield Reuse at the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection. With many years of experience in project financing, cleanup negotiations, litigation and cost recovery support, and brownfield policy development, Colleen is recognized as one of the state's most knowledgeable experts on brownfield development and financing.
