Environmental Law and Regulation

February 24 and 25, 2009

$475 before 2/10; $495 after; $445 multiple

Course Code: EL0101CA09

Are you a consultant or lawyer new to the field of Environmental Law? Or perhaps you are an experienced practitioner in need of a refresher? Either way, this class is a MUST for you! Learn environmental law from the best minds in the business! This practical, two-day program assembles some of New Jersey's top environmental experts to help you better understand how to comply with state and federal environmental laws and regulations. Environmental law is a maze of overlapping, and sometimes conflicting, jurisdictions and mandates from many levels of government. This course will help you better plan for, and comply with, those mandates by understanding the organizational structures and legal tools for administering and enforcing environmental laws. You will learn about the various state and federal water, air and solid and hazardous waste regulations. You will also hear about the requirements, strategies and funding opportunities to remediate and redevelop contaminated properties.

PLEASE NOTE: Land Use Law and Regulation will be offered in a separate class on June 10, 2009.

Seminar Topics

DAY ONE - FEBRUARY 24, 2009

- Overview of Environmental Law and the Regulatory Process
- Clean Air Act
- Clean Water Act, NJPDES Program, Clean Water Enforcement Act

About the Faculty Coordinators

Susan Boyle joined GEI Consultants in July 2008 as leader of the brownfield and sustainability practice. Sue's consulting career follows a distinguished public service career in which she broke a number of barriers at NJDEP. Sue was the first woman to serve in each of the following senior management positions: Assistant Commissioner of Site Remediation; Director of Responsible Party Remediation; Spill Fund Administrator; and Executive Director of the Hazardous Waste Commission. She co-chairs the NJ Chapter of the Society of Women Environmental Professionals and the Environmental Business Council's Sustainability Committee.

Martha N. Donovan Esq. is a member of Norris, McLaughlin and Marcus and devotes her practice to environmental law, including complex multi-party litigation. Martha regularly counsels clients on a variety of environmental issues. Martha has authored numerous articles in the environmental field and has made presentations to various trade groups and associations.

Colleen Kokas is the Brownfield Manager within the Office of Brownfield Reuse at the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection. With many years of experience in project financing, cleanup negotiations, litigation and cost recovery support, and brownfield policy development, Colleen is recognized as one of the state's most knowledgeable experts on brownfield development and financing.
