Join the Field of Environmental Health
Life’s too short to take just any job. And right now, the field of environmental health needs people that want to make a difference with their careers. If you have the heart, desire and skills to save lives and protect NJ’s residents and environment, then join the next generation of environmental health.

7 weeks in the classroom + 5 weeks in the field =
A life-changing experience

The Credential YOU Need in Environmental Health
Graduates of the EPH program are eligible to take the New Jersey licensing exam to become Registered Environmental Health Specialists (REHS). In NJ, an REHS acts as the front-line investigator for many of the state’s public health and environmental regulations. REHS work as health inspectors, environmental compliance managers and environmental consultants in both the public and private sectors.

Get Real-world Experience to Match Your Education
After the 7-week classroom session concludes, we’ll place you in a 200-hour internship to further develop the skills that employers value.

Course Prerequisites

EPH applicants must have: 32 credits in biological, physical, chemical or environmental sciences (with one lab course; no grades below a C accepted) and a minimum of 90 credits overall

In order to sit for the state REHS Licensing Exam you must have your Bachelors Degree and successfully complete the EPH program or equivalent courses at the college level. Our office helps EPH graduates with the application process for the NJ REHS exam.

Get Started Now!
Send us your unofficial transcript using our risk-free on-line submission form (found here: www.cpe.rutgers.edu/eph) or send it by e-mail, fax or mail (include your name, phone & email address). If you qualify for the course, the next step is to send a completed EPH Registration Form (we will provide) along with your official transcript and the $40 non-refundable application fee.

Application Deadline
Applications must be received by May 19 to be considered for the 2013 course.

After May 19, you are still invited to apply, and we will consider your application on a space-available basis.

Course Fees
The non-refundable application fee is $40.

The registration fee is $3,195 if received on or before May 19, 2013. After that date, the registration fee is $3,395. The fee includes two large binders of course materials that summarize class presentations and will serve as a reference for regulatory, technical and managerial information useful in the field for years to come.
